A welcome for Charles and Camilla

Preparation. More than six months of planning and negotiations went into the 24-hour royal visit

CARRIE-MAY SIGGINS
carriemay.siggins@metronews.ca

How much preparation goes into a visit by the Royal couple? The answer is lots.

Jason Quilliam, chief of protocol for the Saskatchewan government, says that more than six months of planning is put into a 24-hour royal visit.

"It's a long process to develop the programs for the royals while they're here," said Quilliam.

"We spend time firming that up to the point were we're literally hours away from welcoming them."

Much of this time is spent in communication with the Prince of Wales' office, called Clarence House, and Heritage Canada to choose the activities that will not only interest the Royal couple but also best represent the province.

After months of negotiation, Clarence House approves a finalized itinerary for the visit.

The events are chosen in accordance with themes that suit the Prince's interests.

The Prince is very interested in environmental issues, says Quilliam. So, he's receiving a tour of the Ground Effects Environmental Services.

One stop along the way for the couple is the First Nations University (FNUvic).

"We've been doing all sorts of things to prepare for the royal visit, like moving artwork around and setting up chairs and all that stuff," said Dr. Lynn Wells, vice-president of academics for FNUvic.

But what they've really concentrated on is how to best feature their own students and alumni in a limited amount of time. This profile will, in part, come in the form of information "pods."

After the welcoming ceremony, the university will have assembled a number of information tables that each focus on different themes.

High-profile students such as Julianne Beaubin-Herney will be stationed at the tables and able to answer the couple's questions on each theme.

The final event for the visit is a performance by the Regina Symphony Orchestra (RSO) at the RCMP Depot Division Drill Hall for not only the Royal couple, but also the prime minister and 600 invited guests.

Misty Selinger is the operations manager for the RSO. She says that planning the program for Wednesday night's performance involved months of back-and-forth with both Clarence House and the Prime Minister's Office.

It turns out that straight-up classical music is too uptight for royalty. "Our strictly classical program was a little too stuffy," said Selinger. "It'll definitely be a fun performance."

The PMO's office even made a request for Beatles music. "So there will be Beatles medley in there as well."

Royal security

- Protocol. Security is major aspect of the visit, says Jason Quilliam, chief of protocol for the Saskatchewan government.
- Safety. The RCMP work closely with the Regina police to ensure that the areas visited by the couple are safe.
- Privacy. For security reasons the RCMP cannot release any information, including how many cars are on the detail, the number of personnel or the route taken by the couple's procession.

  "That's exactly the kind of information someone wanting to do harm to the Royal couple would be looking for," said a rep with the RCMP. "Releasing that would negate any security."

Royal visit. Initiatives, including an iPhone app, examine the relationship between the Royal family and the province

JANE CAULFIELD
jane.caulfield@metronews.ca

This year's royal visit from the Prince of Wales and the Duchess of Cornwall marks the 34th time members of the Royal family have visited the province since 1882.

Regina, also known as the "Queen City," has hosted members of the Royal family 27 times, while Saskatoon has shared the same honour 12 times.

Prince Charles first visited Saskatchewan in 2001, where he received a traditional Cree name: Kisikawpisin Ma Kamiyowahpahmikoot, meaning "the sun watches over him in a good way."

Queen Elizabeth II has visited Saskatchewan five times as a monarch, and visited once a year prior to her ascension to the throne.

This is the first time the Duchess of Cornwall, Camilla, has been to Saskatchewan.

In an effort to recognize and celebrate the unique relationship between the Crown and the province, the government has launched an iPhone app, a series of YouTube videos and a special exhibit at Government House called From Palace to Prairie, which opens Saturday.

There will also be events throughout the year, including an academic conference in October that will examine the institution of the Crown in Canada.

This initiative echoes the Commonwealth theme of this year, which is Connecting Cultures.

Charles and Camilla are touring select cities in Canada as part of the Queen's Diamond Jubilee, celebrating the 60th anniversary of her ascension to the throne in 1952. Their visit to Regina is only a day long, and their back-to-back itinerary leaves little time for the couple to rest.

They will also be present at the legislative assembly to unveil a plaque in honour of the 100th anniversary of the building.

Concerns. Goodale says closing immigration office here is 'foolish'

Wascana MP Ralph Goodale has raised concerns over the planned elimination of the Regina immigration office.

The office is closing due to cuts to Immigration Canada by the federal government. This will leave the province with just one immigration office, located in Saskatoon.

While a few of the Regina office's 10 employees will be transferred to Saskatoon, all other Regina positions will be eliminated.

"That means there will be no local representative of the Government of Canada available in Regina to deal with immigration issues," said Goodale.

"This is a time when immigration services should be expanded and instead the government is cutting them, and I think this is very a shortsighted, foolish policy."

Goodale also takes issue with the way in which these cuts have been rolled out.

"The government said the cuts would not be severe; they said that it would all be sort of bureaucratic, back-office stuff and would not affect the public or service in Saskatchewan," said Goodale.

Ralph Goodale JEFF MACKEY/METRO

He also referenced federal cuts in Saskatchewan to agriculture, international trade, research and border services. "It turns out the cuts are very much on the frontline and they will affect the public."

Immigration has become an increasingly prominent issue in recent weeks after changes to the Saskatchewan Immigration Nomination Program were put through provincially. The changes sparked a fierce backlash from immigrant communities in Saskatchewan.

Many immigrants took issue with the fact that these changes made it more difficult for landed immigrants to bring extended family to the province.

A rally opposing the changes took place May 15 at the legislature.

Oh Boy! Buddy Holly story continues to thrill audiences

Extended run. Musical covers all the bases in the life of the '50s rock 'n' roll legend

regina@metronews.ca

The Globe Theatre's final production on the main stage, Buddy: The Buddy Holly Story, opens on Wednesday.

Director Valerie Pearson has been working on Buddy for about a year now. Casting began last year, but the cast size was cut to 11 from 24. Triple-threat actors were required to play the role of Buddy since they have to be instrumentally versatile as well as able to sing, dance and act.

"We had to find people who could play multiple instruments and had multiple talents, so it took me a lot longer to cast," Pearson said.

Running dates for Buddy have been extended an astonishing four times, but Sef Wood, who plays Buddy Holly, said he's "not at all" surprised the show has been given extra dates so many times. Pearson agrees and thinks performance dates may have to be extended yet again.

"I think it will continue to sell. I think we're going to go beyond even what we've set up. That seems to be the feel around the theatre," she said.

With all the hype Buddy has been receiving comes pressure on the Globe to deliver a show worth being extended four — and possibly five — times. Pearson says the Globe feels the pressure but isn't overly concerned about Buddy being a letdown.

"It was pressure on us to make sure (the show) was deserving and a good show, but I'm not worried about it now. I really feel the actors have come through," she said.

Wood credits both the production and an enduring love for the rock 'n' roll legend for the buzz the show is generating.

"There's certainly a big nostalgia factor at play," he said. "A lot of people just love Buddy Holly. Everyone I've talked to who's seen the show raves about what a good time it is."

That's hardly an exaggeration. A performance of the number Oh Boy! during a media call on Tuesday rocked the room, even though only a handful of people were there. The music is so well done that even the director says she has a hard time focusing.

"I just like to listen to the music. I keep reminding myself that I have to take notes," Pearson said with a laugh.

Playing a figure as big as Buddy Holly has been daunting for Wood.

"There's certainly an expectation when the audience comes in to see the Buddy Holly who they know. It's an interesting challenge to make the character your own but also give the audience what they know. It's a delicate balance, but I've tried to internalize who he is," Wood said.

Buddy runs through July 1, but be sure to grab tickets soon since performances are selling out quickly.

Province calling for public input on wildfire law

Saskatchewan residents are being asked to weigh in on proposed legislation that would be called the Wildfire Act.

The province says the act would better protect public safety and the environment.

It says it would also clarify responsibility for wildfire administration and firefighting within municipalities.

Environment Minister Dustin Duncan says changes to the current legislation are overdue.

The Prairie and Forest Fires Act of 1982 is one of the oldest pieces of fire legislation in Canada, and the government says it has not kept pace with modern wildfire practices.

Meetings with First Nations, municipalities, communities and the public are to be held in May and June, while consultations with northern communities are to resume in September.

Greyhound attacker speaks out in an interview with head of the Manitoba Schizophrenia Society

A supporter of the man who beheaded a fellow passenger on a Greyhound bus in Manitoba says the man thought he was attacking an alien.

The attacker, Vince Li, has given an interview to Chris Summerville, head of the Manitoba Schizophrenia Society, who says Li has been treated unfairly by the public and the media.

Summerville says Li told him he heard voices that said fellow passenger Tim McLean was an alien who had to be killed to protect other passengers.

Li is a schizophrenic and was found not criminally responsible for the crime.

He has been confined to a mental hospital, but last week was granted the right to escorted trips off the hospital grounds and into Selkirk, Man.

Li will have to be escorted at all times by a staff member and a security officer.

Summerville says Li told him during the 45-minute interview that he understands the importance of staying on medication and would like forgiveness from the victim's family.

Li took out a knife and attacked McLean, a stranger and young carnival worker who was sitting beside him on the bus, in July 2008.

McLean was listening to music on his headphones when Li suddenly stood up and started stabbing him.

As the bus stopped and horrified passengers fled, Li carved up McLean's body and ate portions of it.

Paris, New York join students' 100th day of anger

Red spells defiance: A protester with a painted face takes part in a Montreal rally on Tuesday. RYAN REMIORZ/THE CANADIAN PRESS

A river of red-clad protesters rippled through downtown Montreal on Tuesday to mark the 100th day of Quebec's student strikes.

Parallel events were being organized in New York, Vancouver, Calgary and Toronto.

In France, a few hundred people, including many Quebecers, congregated near Paris' famous Notre Dame Cathedral.

There were two demonstrations scheduled in New York: One at Rockefeller Plaza where Quebec government offices are located, and another at Washington Park.

In Montreal, tens of thousands of people clogged the city core in a festive, multi-headed march designed to make a mockery of a new provincial law that demands protest routes be approved in advance.

Even a famous provincial politician, Independent MNA Pierre Curzi, joined the crowds that strayed off the announced path in a mass demonstration of defiance against the law.

Organizers said the crowd size rivalled the massive protests held the two previous months, on the 22nd of each month.

The events came several days after the Quebec government introduced a law imposing new conditions on protests with stiff financial penalties for transgressors — a move that appears to have fanned the flames of the Quebec student movement.

"An increase in the powers of police and the state anywhere is an attack on us everywhere," said the release for the New York event.

Hezbollah appeals for calm after road block, kidnapping

Syria. Rebels intercept vehicles and abduct 11 Lebanese Shiites, sparking protest

The leader of Lebanon's Shiite militant group Hezbollah appealed for calm Tuesday after people blocked roads and burned tires in Beirut to protest the kidnapping of 11 Lebanese Shiites in neighbouring Syria.

The abductions in Syria's northern Aleppo province threatened to ignite dangerous sectarian tensions and fuelled fears that Lebanon is getting drawn into the chaos next door.

The Lebanese were on their way home from a religious pilgrimage in Iran when Syrian rebels intercepted their vehicles, Syria's state-run SANA news agency said. The rebels abducted the 11 men and a Syrian driver. The women were released.

Lebanese security officials confirmed the kidnapping.

As the news of the kidnappings spread, residents of the southern suburbs of Beirut, a Shiite area, took to the streets and burned tires and blocked roads in protest.

The leader of Hezbollah, a strong ally of the Syrian regime, appealed for calm and warned his followers against revenge attacks targeting Syrians.

"This is strictly prohibited," Sheik Hassan Nasrallah said in a televised speech. He said the Lebanese government must press for the pilgrims' release.

The spark for the violence was the killing Sunday of Sheik Ahmed Abdul-Wahid, an anti-Syrian Sunni cleric, and his bodyguard in northern Lebanon. A Lebanese soldier shot the men, apparently after they failed to stop at an army checkpoint. The killing fuelled deep anger over the perceived support of some of Lebanon's security forces for the Syrian regime.

Court sentences cops to 10 years for killing protesters

An Egyptian court sentenced five policemen to 10 years in prison in absentia on Tuesday for killing protesters, in a rare conviction of security officials accused of using deadly force against the demonstrations that overthrew Hosni Mubarak in 2011.

Typically defendants who do not appear in court are automatically convicted, but will also receive a new trial once apprehended.

However, families of slain protesters attending the court session counted the convictions as a victory. They broke down in tears and chanted "God is great!" in a show of relief.

Until now, out of the nearly 200 policemen and security officials who face charges related to the killing of protesters in 2011, one was convicted in absentia. When he had a retrial, he received a one-year suspended sentence.

Others are still standing trial, including Mubarak himself. A verdict in his case is expected next month.

Tighter mortgage rules not enough to cool market: OECD

Real estate. OECD suggesting Bank of Canada raise interest rates this fall with a target of 2.25 per cent

Moves by the federal government to tighten mortgage-lending rules aren't doing enough to cool the housing market in the hottest regions in the country, the Organization for Economic Co-operation and Development said Tuesday.

OECD senior economist Peter Jarrett said while some areas will benefit from the changes, red-hot markets like Toronto are unaffected by the more restrictive rules.

"The risks are that people put too many eggs in one basket," Jarrett said in warning that low rates entice homebuyers to borrow more than they can sustain at higher rates.

Rate risks

"The risks are that people put too many eggs in one basket."

OECD senior economist Peter Jarrett, warning that low interest rates entice homeowners to borrow more than they can afford.

The posted rate for a variable-rate mortgage at Canada's big banks stands at prime plus 0.2 percentage points, or roughly 3.2 per cent.

"If rates go up something like we are suggesting, then mortgage rates will be in more like the five per cent range," Jarrett said.

The OECD has suggested the Bank of Canada begin to raise interest rates this fall with a target of 2.25 per cent by the end of next year, up from one per cent where it has stood since September 2010.

"We feel that at least in the hottest real-estate markets, particularly Toronto, that would be a good signal that people should think twice about continuing to leverage up in order to buy more house than maybe they really need," Jarrett said.

The Paris-based international-development body recommended last year that the Bank of Canada look to start raising interest rates, but it was ignored as the European sovereign-debt crisis rocked the global economy and prompted the central bank to remain on hold.

Jarrett said as long as the European crisis doesn't explode again this summer, higher rates will be justified.

Bank of Canada governor Mark Carney and Finance Minister Jim Flaherty have both warned Canadians repeatedly that higher interest rates are coming as rates have lingered near historic lows for years.

Scheming rings around the Olympic brand

People walk past the Café Lympic in Stratford, east London. One day, the small espresso shop near the site of the London Games was the "Olympic" cafe. The next day, it was the "lympic." So where did the "O" go? The manager won't say. But it's more than likely the small business became another casualty in the battle against guerrilla marketers — advertisers who try to associate their products with an event without paying to be sponsors. Protecting the Olympic brand is always a big job, and never more so than this year. Olympic organizers say the increasing sophistication of guerrilla marketers and the rise of social media are putting the five rings under assault in ways barely envisioned a decade ago. # Facebook's stock slide deepens on third day

Facebook's newly public stock slid further on its third trading day as investors reconsidered how much the social network is worth.

The company's long-anticipated initial public offering of stock raised $16 billion US, valuing the company at $104 billion — more than Amazon.com, at $98 billion.

But Facebook's stock has plunged after the IPO. It finished Tuesday down $3.03, or 8.9 per cent, from Monday at $31.

Google, meanwhile, is worth nearly $200 billion.

The downward spiral has left some people sitting on big losses and others scratching their heads. After all, nothing fundamental has changed at Facebook in the days since the much-hyped company came to Nasdaq Stock Market with a ticker symbol of FB.

Market muddle

For a host of reasons, Facebook's falling share price shouldn't have been a surprise.

- Its IPO occurred the same week that the markets posted their worse performance so far in 2012.
- Americans' love affair with the stock market continues to wane. People have yanked more than $400 billion from U.S. stock mutual funds since 2008.

Facebook still has more than 900-million users, its 28-year-old founder Mark Zuckerberg controls the company, and it is still one of the few profitable internet companies to go public.

Facebook's IPO — like Netscape's in 1995 and Google's in 2004 — was billed as a milestone moment. But investors don't seem convinced.

Facebook's stock closed Monday at $34.03, down 11 per cent from Friday's closing price of $38.23. The investment banks that arranged Facebook's offering set a price of $38 on Thursday.

ZUCKERBERG'S ALL TIED UP

JUST SAYIN'
Paul Sullivan
metronews.ca/justsaying

Mark Zuckerberg is 28 years old.

Over the weekend, he got married to his longtime sweetheart, Priscilla Chan.

Oh, and his company went public. It's called Facebook and it's now worth about $93 billion US, and Zuckerberg himself is worth about $19 billion.

What did you do this weekend?

The crazy thing for Zuckerberg is that it really only begins to get interesting. Now he has shareholders and a wife. Welcome to accountability, kid.

Most of what I know about Zuckerberg I learned from that movie The Social Network, which made him out to be the worst kind of manipulative nerd, who stole the whole Facebook idea from the Winklevoss twins, two hunky Harvard Olympic-class characters who have made a career out of being victimized by Zuckerberg. Nice work if you can get it.

But however it started, in exactly eight years, Zuckerberg has managed to turn Facebook into the world's largest social network with 901 million active users. In June 2011, Facebook reached one trillion page views, making it the most-visited website in the world. How long before it passes a bazillion?

Sweating it

On the eve of the IPO, he wore a hoodie while meeting with all the investment houses that were about to handle the offering.

Friday's initial public offering raised $16 billion, though it's not all roses. The stock is falling from its opening-day price of $38, and a lot of investors who thought they were going to buy and then flip the stock after Day 1 find themselves owning shares of a … website, albeit the world's most visited.

I have a website. It's called breakthroughpr.com. It's yours for a mere billion. Or a million. OBO.

I also have a Facebook account with 158 friends and, I admit, it's getting away from me. I mean, who is Abutu Joseph Ejima and why does he want to be my friend?

Zuckerberg has more than 14 million subscribers, which is the lowest order of friend. I'm one of them.

Facebook is everywhere, including in your head, even if you're a little kid. Although membership is restricted to kids over 13, Consumer Reports estimates there are 7.5 million kids under 13 with a Facebook account, violating the rules. Do you know what your kids are doing on Facebook? Do you even know your kids are on Facebook?

Speaking of kids, Zuckerberg is still doing the kind of stuff that is sure to prompt a sequel to The Social Network: The Nerd Stumbles. For instance, on the eve of his IPO, he wore a hoodie while meeting with all the investment houses that were about to handle the offering. Very bad timing. And then General Motors pulled all its ads from Facebook. Very bad news.

Speaking of marriage, we hope that Facebook doesn't crater Zuckerberg's. The site has already been implicated in more than one-third of last year's divorces, as it only takes a few clicks to become romantically entangled. It would be ironic if Priscilla caught Mark messing with a "subscriber" in a bricks-and-mortar no-tell motel.

Still, he wore a tie at his wedding, which means he's more accountable to his wife than to Wall Street. That's what being grown up is all about.

- Hit or miss. "The photo is of Grinnell Point, a mountain face in Glacier National Park, Montana. That morning started out stormy and cloudy, which can be magical or a real dud. It can be hit or miss, which is why a photographer must make the effort to be at a location and ready. I kept looking behind me, checking to see if there was a hole in the eastern horizon that the sun might break through. In the end, this is what makes the shot unique since the peak stands out from the rest of the landscape and becomes a real focal point."
- Clues to the hues. "The red is due in part to the warm incandescence of the rising sun, but also to the rock composition and colour. It's a sedimentary rock composed of argillite and quartzite, which is reddish-brown. You can see the evergreen trees in the left centre of the shot turning red from the sun at the sun-shade boundary."

New age stalking

Did someone hack into Selena Gomez's facebook page?

Britain's judiciary says that a 21-year-old sentenced last week for hacking into a U.S.-based Facebook account accessed the page belonging to teen actress Selena Gomez, who is the girlfriend of pop idol Justin Bieber. Gareth Crosskey was jailed for 12 months Wednesday after pleading guilty to crimes under Britain's Computer Misuse Act. His victim wasn't identified at the time, but The Sun newspaper named her as Gomez. The tabloid said Crosskey posted the words Justin Bieber sucks to her Facebook page, prompting a torrent of abuse from the Canadian singer's fans. It also said Crosskey claimed to have intercepted messages between the pair. Britain's Judicial Official on Tuesday confirmed that The Sun's story was accurate. Gomez's U.S.-based representatives did not immediately return emails.

Movie monster mash-ups

Could Abraham Lincoln: Vampire Hunter spark a gore-addled revisionist-historical-fiction-movie trend? Another of author Seth Grahame-Smith's works, Pride Prejudice and Zombies, which adds a brain-eating wrinkle to Jane Austen's corsets-and-crumpets chick-lit standard is already in development. To speed this nascent genre along (and send history buffs into hysterics) we've concocted a few more viable monster mashes.

History meets the supernatural in Abraham Lincoln: Vampire Hunter. CONTRIBUTED

Romeo + Juliet + Chupacabra

Romeo crashes a bash at the Capulet mansion and his heart starts beating out of his chest when he catches sight of fair Juliet. That night on her balcony she reveals that Romeo also makes her heart go pitter-patter. Unbeknownst to the star-crossed teenaged lovers, a lurking chupacabra with a real soft spot for humans who speak in iambic pentameter feels thrills through his veins at the thought of frolicking through the streets of Verona with both Juliet and Romeo in his arms. Smitten, the chupacabra is willing to slay every peripheral character in the story from Tybalt to Lady Montague to make it happen. Starring: Taylor Swift, Michael Cera and Zach Galifianakis.

Anne of Green Ogres

Spinster Ogre siblings who run a fishing outfit in PEI adopt an adolescent orphan to help catch more lobsters. While they had bargained on a boy, Anne's happy-go-lucky personality charms their warts off and they keep her. At school she gets loads of double takes from the guys because of her carrot-orange locks. All the other young ogres' hair is vomit green. When an infatuated classmate yanks at her braids and calls her "five alarm fire hot," she bashes a blackboard over his head and the seed of young love is planted. There's literally thousands of pages worth of similarly quaint coming of-age-school hi-jinks in the source material. Five sequels and a hundred foreign language adaptations later, they will consummate their marathon courtship and actually hook up. Starring: Emma Stone and Andrew Garfield.

Spartacus: Swords, Sandals and Succubus, Too

The gladiator lifestyle is really the pits. There's the sparse wardrobe — nothing but ill-fitting sandals and unlaundered loincloths, coupled with the grim odds they face every time they enter the arena. Bookies in Capua taking five denari win, lose or draw wagers on your hide (hardly veiled code for live, die or end up severely mangled) can take a toll on the soul. Remarkably, subjugation by the Romans and horrid hygiene are the least of the Thracian's woes when his dominus's housekeepers-with-benefits turn out to be succubi. Will Sparty free his fellow gladiators or fall prey to the charms of the lusty she-demons? Starring: Daniel Craig and Kate Upton.

Dances with Werewolves

While manning a frontier outpost, a Union lieutenant befriends a Native American tribe who harbour a furry little secret. You'd think the introduction to tribal elders Barks at the Moon and his brother Runs with Team Jacob would be a tip-off but it's not until the clueless soldier falls head over hind legs for a bright eyed medicine woman who goes by Shapely Shifter that he has his I'm in love with a Lycan "a-ha" moment. After four excruciating hours of watching the protagonist go hunting with the pack and acclimating to the lifestyle, we wait with baited breath, as the soldier must finally decide whether he should become a Wolfman himself. Starring: John Hamm and Moon Bloodgood.

Frost/Nixon/ Abominable Snowman

Tricky Dick decides to break his post-Watergate silence by agreeing to a series of interviews with lightweight British talk show host David Frost. During the first couple of tête-à-têtes, Frost fails to get the disgraced former president to come clean. Before their last session Nixon accidentally drunk dials Frost and reveals that when he eats too much cottage cheese he transforms into a giant Yeti. Desperate, Frost uses this seemingly fanciful tidbit to turn the tables on their psychological brinksmanship by serving Dick some blintzes. It works and he gets a snow-white, 12-foot-tall Nixon cop to not only admit to letting down the American people, but also his nephew Bigfoot. Starring: Jude Law and Tommy Lee Jones.

Prince William talks wedding jitters and his destiny as King

Prince William

Prince William admits he didn't get much rest the night before his wedding last year. "(The crowds) were singing and cheering all night long, so the excitement of that, the nervousness of me and everyone singing — I slept for about half an hour," William says in an interview with ITV for a documentary about his grandmother, the Queen. And as for his destiny of eventually taking the throne as King of England, he admits he's resigned to his fate.

"There's not that much wriggle room left for me to try and find my own path, but I will do. It's just a matter of learning what's gone before me," William says.

John Travolta

Accusers' lawyers fighting in John Travolta fiasco

The John Travolta sexual assault allegations are taking a strange turn, with lawyers on the side of the accusers now fighting with each other. Okorie Okorocha, the lawyer who originally represented the first John Does to accuse Travolta of unwanted sexual advances, is now suing Gloria Allred, claiming she is stealing his clients, according to Hollyscoop. "Mr. Okorocha's lawsuit will be met with a counterclaim for defamation," Allred says in a statement.

Celebs call out Chris Brown's performance

THE WORD
Monica Weymouth
scene@metronews.ca

Chris Brown appeared to lip sync his way through his Billboard Music Awards performance on Sunday evening, and it didn't escape the notice of his peers.

"One day if I lip sync I hope I do it as well as him," singer Pink tweeted as Brown performed a rendition of Turn Up the Music.

Mr. Pink, also known as Carey Hart, wasn't impressed either. "I'm pretty sure I saw my wife do that same performance, but she was three months pregnant and actually sang the song," he chimed in, also adding his professional opinion of the subpar BMX biking on stage.

This is getting brutal. Joe Jonas, what Tweet you? "What happened to people singing live???"

Here's the thing: the song was obviously lip-synced — and laughably poorly. But the performance is at least as important as the vocals for these shows, and Brown was far from the only one mouthing his way through a song that he probably had no business singing live.

But as for the fur-trimmed leather coat over a bare chest? No excuses.

Miley Cyrus says sex education key for youth

Miley Cyrus ALL PHOTOS GETTY IMAGES

Nineteen-year-old former Disney star Miley Cyrus thinks frank discussions about sex shouldn't be off-limits for kids. "Girls who base how much they're worth on the sexual favours they can do for somebody, that makes me really sad, because sex is actually really beautiful," she says during an interview for the Conversation with Amanda de Cadenet this week.

"It's ignorant to not talk to your kids about it or make it seem like it's not as cool or magical as it actually is. If (kids) have a TV, they know what sex is. Everyone knows, so educate them. Let them know that they wouldn't be here without it, and it is a beautiful thing, and it is magic, and it is when you connect with somebody and it isn't how much you're worth."

Brazil eyes hotel price cuts

Brazil is taking steps to lower the spiraling cost of accommodations during the United Nations' upcoming conference on sustainable development, the office of Brazilian President Dilma Rousseff said Wednesday. The statement said the steps could bring reductions of more than 60 per cent for the cost of housing at the Rio+20 conference in Rio de Janeiro, where authorities faced sharp criticism for skyrocketing hotel costs and shortcomings in available rooms. As many as 50,000 people are expected to flood into Rio for the June 20-22 event even though the city has a hotel capacity of just 33,000 beds. Critics have accused the city's hotel sector of taking advantage of the spike in demand to charge exorbitant rates, often several times the normal prices. The statement from Rousseff's office said the company responsible for providing accommodations to conference participants, Brazilian tour operator Terramar Turismo e Eventos, was scrapping its 25 per cent management fee. In addition, hotels will no longer require guests to book a week-long stay, meaning delegates will be able to pay for only the nights they intend to stay, the statement said. That will lead to a 30 per cent to 40 per cent price cut for some delegates.

5 off-beat places to stay while on vacation

1 Minimalist houseboat Brandenburg, Germany

After a heavy weekend in Berlin, you might want to consider a bucolic retreat at this floating houseboat. A short drive or train journey away from the city, this houseboat is moored on a lake in the leafy Brandenburg area but guests can take it on a cruise across the water. The simple houseboat is pleasingly designed with pine-panelling, a comfy sofa and dining room table with incredible views through glass doors over the lake — even better, it's internet, phone and TV-free. It sleeps two but can accommodate up to 10 for sunset cocktails round the barbecue on the veranda.

Price: From $188 per night.
Visit: 9flats.com

2 Boot and Breakfast, New Zealand

This fairytale retreat in the form of a giant boot, set in a hazelnut grove in the heart of the New Zealand countryside, is probably an acquired taste, but kitsch fans will relish in its crazy form. They'll also be able to enjoy a relaxing stay here, too. The hosts keep the two-storey cottage stocked with fresh flowers, chocolates, candles, champagne and serve organic breakfasts using home-grown produce, which can be eaten on the terrace, where guests are surrounded by fragrant flowers.

Price: $230 per night.

Visit: airbnb.com

3 Crane, Harlingen, Netherlands

Towering 17 metres above the pier in the historic town of Harlingen, in the Netherlands, this romantic haven with fabulous sunset views over the Wadden Sea is not one for the vertiginous. The crane was designed to move timber when it was built in 1967 and is now a bijou bolthole, complete with lift, king-size bed heating, free wifi, flat-screen cable TV and even a sundeck. Guests can even whizz the crane round themselves, choosing sea or town view from a 360 panorama.

Price: From $427 per night.
Visit: wimdu.com

4 Rural castle, Halifax, England

Voted the U.K.'s most luxurious home by the viewers of TV home-talent show, I Own Britain's Best Home, this five-bedroom faux-Norman folly may date back to 1860 but it is equipped with all mod-cons including plasma TVs, indoor swimming pool, full gym to a hot tub on the terrace. Next to a deer park in a valley between Leeds and Manchester, the leafy estate boasts private woodlands, landscaped gardens, its own lake and even a working water wheel.

Price: From $3,700 per night.
Visit: wimdu.com

5 Vintage Boeing 727, Costa Rica

If you've ever fantasized about reinventing the ending of Lost, then perhaps it would be something like this: your favourite character transforms the plane into a luxurious, Costa Rican teak-panelled b&b and you go to stay in it. This vintage Boeing 727 is now home to a luxury haven with two air-conditioned jungle-view en-suite bedrooms, kitchen and dining area and perches on a 15-metre high pedestal on the edge of Costa Rica's Costa Verde II National Park. The hardwood terrace built over the plane's former right wing offers spectacular views of sloths lounging and monkeys frolicking in the jungle on one side, and crystalline waters lapping the white beach on the other.

Price: $411 per night.

Drink of the Week

Toasted Almond Ice Cream Float

1. Preheat the oven to 350 F (180 C). Toast the almonds on a baking sheet until they are golden and fragrant, about eight minutes.

2. Place the yolks in a large mixing bowl, cover the bowl with plastic wrap and set aside until ready to use.

3. In a medium saucepan, bring milk, cream, salt, almonds, almond extract, and ¼ cup (50 ml) of sugar to boil. Turn off the heat and let steep at room temperature 15 minutes; return to a rolling boil.

4. Whisk remaining sugar into bowl with yolks until smooth. Gently temper yolks by slowly adding hot almond cream, while whisking constantly. Once completely combined, strain mixture through a fine-mesh sieve into a large metal bowl. Place bowl of ice cream base over another bowl of ice water and stir until cool.

5. Freeze mixture in an ice cream machine according to the manufacturer's directions until ice cream has a smooth, soft-serve-like texture. Store in freezer for four hours before serving.

6. To serve, fill four tall glasses with two or three scoops of Toasted Almond Ice Cream each, top with root beer, and serve immediately.

- 1 cup (250 ml) almonds, finely chopped
- 6 egg yolks
- 1 ½ cups (375 ml) each whole milk and heavy cream
- ¼ tsp (1 ml) fine sea salt
- ½ tsp (1 ml) almond extract
- ½ cup (125 ml) plus 2 tbsp (30 ml) granulated sugar, divided
- 4 bottles old-fashion root beer

Unique dish gives ground beef life beyond hamburgers

Why should pie be limited to dessert? No reason at all, actually. Everything we love about pie — a moist and delicious interior, a flaky bronzed crust — can work as easily for savoury dinners and lunches as it can for cherries, apples and blueberries.

To keep the stroganoff pies simple, use a purchased pie crust. And to make forming them even easier, cook them in a muffin tin. They are delicious warm and cool.

Ingredients

- 15 ml (1 tbsp) olive oil
- 1 small onion, diced
- 125 g (4 oz) chopped cremini mushrooms
- 5 ml (1 tsp) salt
- 2 ml (1/2 tsp) freshly ground black pepper
- 5 ml (1 tsp) smoked paprika
- 60 g (2 oz) cream cheese, cut into chunks
- 175 g (12 oz) extra-lean ground beef
- 1 pkg (425 g) refrigerated pie crusts (contains 2 crusts)
- 1 egg, well beaten

1. Lightly coat a large six-cup muffin tin with cooking spray.

2. In a large skillet heat oil over medium-high heat. Add onion and sauté for three minutes.

3. Add mushrooms, salt and pepper; sauté for six to eight minutes or until well browned and soft. Remove from heat and add smoked paprika and cream cheese; stir to combine. Let mixture cool for five minutes.

4. In a bowl, mix together mushroom mixture and beef; set aside.

5. On a lightly floured surface, unroll one of the prepared pie crusts. Cut six circles from the crust. Each circle needs to be large enough to fit into the muffin cups, come up the sides and overhang the upper edge by about 1 cm (1/2 inch). Fit one circle into each muffin cup. Spoon meat filling evenly among cups.

6. From the second crust, cut out six smaller circles to fit on top of the muffin pies. With your fingers or a fork, crimp around the edges to seal each pie. Brush tops of pies with beaten egg and cut a slit in the top crust to vent.

7. Bake in 400 F (200 C) oven for 15 to 20 minutes or until golden brown and a thermometer inserted into the centre reaches 74 C (165 F). Pie can be served warm or cooled to room temperature.

High-heat wok-style cooking meets Hispanic ingredients

This recipe serves four. MATTHEW MEAD/ THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

1. In a medium bowl, whisk together the tamari, sherry, cornstarch and white pepper. Add the ground beef and mix until thoroughly incorporated. Set aside.

2. Set your wok over high and let heat for 1 minute. Add 1/2 tablespoon of the oil and heat until it shimmers. Add the onion and both bell peppers. As soon as they hit the wok, immediately stir them around the pan. Cook for 5 minutes, or until the onions and peppers are just barely cooked and still firm and colorful.

3. Transfer vegetables to a plate. Use paper towels to dry wok, then return it to heat.

4. When the wok is hot again, add the remaining 1/2 tablespoon of oil and heat until it shimmers. Add the garlic first, then immediately add the ground beef.

5. Use the back of the spatula to spread the beef across the wok as if frying a wide burger. Let the meat sear on one side until golden brown. This gives your meat a crispy exterior with juicy interior. You can test for doneness by flipping the beef in the centre of your wok where the heat is the hottest. If it is golden brown, flip all the beef and break it up with your spatula.

6. Once the beef is just cooked (when you don't see any red, about seven minutes), return the onion-pepper mixture to the pan. Add the tomatoes, olives, raisins, cumin, oregano and paprika. Mix well, then reduce heat to medium and fry for five minutes. Stir in the lime juice. Serve spooned over rice and topped with fresh cilantro, mint or parsley. Ingredients

- 1 tablespoon tamari or good (MSG-free) soy sauce
- 1 teaspoon medium drinking sherry
- 2 teaspoons of cornstarch
- 2 pinches white pepper
- 1 pound 90 per cent lean ground beef
- 1 tablespoon canola or other high-heat oil, divided
- 1 medium yellow onion, finely chopped
- 1/2 each medium green and red bell peppers, cored and finely chopped
- 2 cloves garlic, diced
- 2 plum tomatoes, finely chopped
- 1/4 cup diced green olives with pimentos
- 1/4 cup raisins
- 2 teaspoons ground cumin
- 1 teaspoon dried oregano
- 1 teaspoon paprika
- Juice of 1 lime
- Sprigs of fresh cilantro, mint or parsley, to serve

Lentil Meat Loaf. Serve this fibre-packed dish with mashed potatoes

1. Lightly oil a loaf pan; set aside.

2. In bowl, lightly whisk eggs. Whisk in tomato paste. Add beef, onion, oatmeal, lentils, oregano, sage, thyme and salt. Using hands, stir and blend mixture together until thoroughly and evenly combined. Mound mixture into prepared loaf pan or free-form a loaf shape on a parchment-lined baking sheet.

3. In a bowl, whisk together sugar, ketchup, mustard and horseradish; spread evenly over loaf. Bake in 190 C (375 F) oven for about 45 minutes or until loaf is cooked through. The meat loaf is done when a thermometer inserted in its thickest part reads 70 C (160 F). THE CANADIAN PRESS/ LENTILS.CA/ ADAPTED BY EMILY RICHARDS (PROFESSIONAL HOME ECONOMIST, COOKBOOK AUTHOR, TV CELEBRITY CHEF. FOR MORE, VISIT EMILYRICHARDSCOOKS.CA)

Ingredients

- 2 eggs
- 1 can (156 ml/5.5 oz) tomato paste
- 1 kg (2 lb) medium ground beef
- 1 large onion, finely chopped
- 250 ml (1 cup) large flake oatmeal
- 250 ml (1 cup) cooked lentils
- 15 ml (1 tbsp) each chopped fresh oregano, sage and thyme
- 5 ml (1 tsp) salt

Topping

- 50 ml (1/4 cup) packed brown sugar
- 50 ml (1/4 cup) ketchup
- 15 ml (1 tbsp) mustard (any type)

Now that's an idea. Share all that's up your sleeve

Diana Goodwin believes that times are changing. As the President and Founder of AquaMobile Swim School, Diana knows that with student underemployment on the rise and an ever-increasingly competitive job market, it is no surprise that new graduates today are exploring less conventional career options.

Diana left her prestigious consultant position at Bain & Company to pursue her own business full-time. She was determined to create a swim school that provided high-quality individualized swimming lessons to students in the comfort and convenience of their own homes.

As an ex-swim instructor, Diana realized that most students weren't getting the attention they needed in large community classes and that with today's hectic lifestyle, parents were looking for a more convenient option, and so, AquaMobile was born.

Want change? Take charge

Diana's advice:

- Focus. Choose one idea and go for it. Don't get distracted along the way.
- Start young. Build your network.
- Start now. Start something part-time and surround yourself with like-minded people.

Jordan Maretzki
Student
Geomatics Engineering
University of Calgary

As a Geomatics Engineer at the U of C, I applied for about six different positions. Of those six, I had three contact me about doing an interview.

My interview with my eventual employer, Mentor Engineering, went extremely well. They were very impressed with my work experience. I had been working at Heritage Park (a "living historical village" in Calgary) for the previous five years, and they said they liked the fact that I showed progress through the ranks at Heritage Park.

Two of my interviewers used to work at Heritage Park as well, making the interview much easier for me as it gave us some common ground. They were also impressed with the consistency of my marks. Now, my grades are nothing to write home about, but they liked the fact that I stuck with it (my first year was rough) and improved every year. The exact word they used was "consistent."

If I could leave one piece of advice, it would be this: never underestimate job experience. Even if it is washing dishes or flipping burgers, you are learning how to work.

Employers don't want to have to spend time teaching a raw kid how to be on time or how to behave, so that is where previous job experience really comes in handy. I truly believe that my job experience was a major factor as to why I was hired by Mentor Engineering.

My recommendations for employers, schools and career centres

Give your employees (interns) lots of responsibility! We may be young, but we're more than willing to prove ourselves. It is a good feeling to be trusted by a senior engineer, to know you are responsible for the success of the company.

The business of better: Working for the world

Broadening the bottom line. How to innovate, create and put food on your plate

JUSTINE ABIGAIL YU
TalentEgg.ca

The word "business" might summon an image of an unfeeling and profit-making machine. Rarely is it thought of as an exclusively benevolent force that aims to make the world a better place. Or maybe this is just me…but in any case, businesses are ultimately designed to maximize profit and sometimes do so at the expense of the environment or their employees.

More often than not, environmental sustainability, workers rights, and job creation are merely afterthoughts or marketing gimmicks aimed at — you guessed it — making more money.

But there has been a shift in recent years away from this single bottom line of profit towards a triple bottom line. Think of it as the Three Ps: people, planet, and profit. This is the realm of social innovation where innovators and entrepreneurs use novel ideas to solve pressing social issues like health care, poverty, homelessness, crime, and food security.

This change in the conventional business model is resulting in a burgeoning sector and perhaps you're one such social innovator or entrepreneur with the next big idea that will change the world… or maybe you don't have that idea yet, but you're interested in exploring a career down this path. Either way, the big question is: how do you dip your toes into this relatively new and exciting sector?

Thinking times three

"There has been a shift in recent years away from this single bottom line of profit towards a triple bottom line. Think of it as the Three Ps: people, planet, and profit." Justine Abigail Yu

It all starts with a search

This whole sector is made up of change agents, or people who get out there and act. If this is something you want to really commit to, check out:

- Social Innovation Generation: Canada, MaRS Discovery District, Youth Social Innovation Capital Fund, Ashoka and the Centre for Social Innovation for resources, funding and guidance.

Learn the lingo
Social enterprise. Social finance. Corporate social responsibility. Social entrepreneurs and social intrapreneurs. These are all common words in the world of social innovation and you should get to know them inside and out if you're planning on starting your own organization or working at one.

Attend industry events and network
Hubs of social innovation are popping up everywhere. Research what's happening around your area and attend any local events. What better way to get to know this sector than by surrounding yourself with the actual change agents themselves?

Conduct an informational interview
After you've attended one of those local events and networked your face off, why not follow up with those new connections you've made? Never underestimate the power of getting together over a hot cup of java to ask questions or even share your ideas.

Conduct an informational interview with a social innovator and ask him or her everything you've ever wondered about the sector, the specific social problem you're interested in, and even what the job itself entails.

Volunteer
Find an organization that is doing work you are passionate about and gain some hands-on experience. Get your hands dirty and volunteer! Whether it's within your local community or working overseas, there is honestly no deeper learning than practical learning.

Job hunt
Since this is a relatively nascent movement, there are always new roles and opportunities available at social enterprises. Contribute your skills and experience to one that you feel is creating real social impact.

All-too-familiar position for Rangers

NHL. East finalists brush away the rhetoric and prepare for a crucial Game 5

Practice for the New York Rangers went from optional to mandatory. Their attitude shifted from agitated to optimistic.

For the third straight series, the East's top-seeded team is all even through four games and each time New York has headed into Game 5 coming off a loss that would have given the Rangers a commanding 3-1 edge.

The negative view would be that they can't handle prosperity. The positive outlook is that the Rangers have a knack of bouncing back. After all, they advanced from this spot in the opening two rounds with Game 7 victories in the comfort of Madison Square Garden.

The task at hand against the rival New Jersey Devils in the conference finals is difficult, yet satisfyingly familiar. The Rangers have lost three straight Game 2s after series-opening wins and all three Game 4s following Game 3 victories.

"I guess it's a positive," Rangers captain Ryan Callahan said Tuesday after practice. "It's something we've been through. We know how to prepare for it, and we'll be ready."

Rangers coach John Tortorella ran a 40-minute practice that was originally scheduled to be optional. That changed after a 4-1 defeat on Monday in Game 4 in New Jersey. New York hosts Game 5 Wednesday.

After a team meeting, Tortorella seemed pleased with his team.

"It defines our team ... our resiliency," Tortorella said. "You have to remember, when you're trying to win two in a row, there's also a team trying not to lose two in a row. It's a pretty good team at this stage of the season."

But what can be done to get players such as Marian Gaborik, playmaker Brad Richards, and others such as Callahan and Brian Boyle going?

"Pray," Tortorella said. "I don't know what else to tell you. We're going to keep on trying to play, pray, and hopefully something good happens to them."

The Rangers have scored nine goals in four games against the Devils. Only one has been scored by the Rangers' top-line forwards.

Clemens jurors get chance to pose questions

Brian McNamee in Washington on Monday. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Among the 29 questions the Roger Clemens jury wanted to ask the pitcher's chief accuser, Brian McNamee, one cut to the heart of the case.

"Why should we believe you when you have shown so many inconsistencies in your testimonies?"

"I won't ask that," U.S. District Judge Reggie Walton declared during a bench conference with trial attorneys to decide which juror questions he would read. "That's for them to decide."

The question makes it sound as if at least one of the jurors in the perjury case has serious doubts about the credibility of the government's key witness against the 11-time all-star pitcher. Or it could be that the juror believes McNamee, but wanted to play devil's advocate.

The court did not sit Tuesday because the judge had another obligation. Walton's practice, rare among judges, of allowing jurors to submit their own questions allows a mid-trial glimpse of how the case looks to those whose opinions ultimately matter most.

Clemens is charged with lying to Congress when he testified in 2008 that he had never used steroids or human growth hormone. McNamee, Clemens' longtime strength coach, says he injected Clemens with steroids in 1998, 2000 and 2001 and with HGH in 2000.

The fact that there were 29 questions shows a degree of uncertainty about McNamee's testimony. At least two questions dealt with how McNamee came to assume that Clemens had previously used steroids in 1998. Someone also wanted to know how McNamee could have been "surprised" to see HGH items in a shaving kit in Clemens' bathroom before injecting Clemens' wife, Debbie, sometime around 2003.

Question period

The trial was always going to revolve around McNamee's credibility — it's not a stretch to say he is 95 per cent of the government's case — so the jurors' impressions of him are crucial.

- They wrote their questions for him on index cards on Monday. The judge then huddled with lawyers from both sides out of earshot of the jury to decide which ones can be asked.

Volvo S40

JUSTIN PRITCHARD
Drive@metronews.ca

Volvo's compact sedan, the S40, shared mechanicals with the Volvo V50 wagon while offering shoppers an eager four-door with an eye for Scandinavian style and safety.

Look for front or all-wheel drive, and plenty of premium features — including a sunroof, iPod connectivity, automatic climate control, premium audio, heated leather and plenty more.

Delivery of a sporty and sophisticated motoring experience was the S40's intention.

Common Issues

Check for proper operation of the external temperature readout, climate control system and all door-mounted controls — including the power locks, mirrors and windows. Some owners have reported door-mounted controls going dead at random. As well, ensure the remote keyless entry system works as expected, and check for any 'Check Engine' lights or warning messages.

A humming sound or vibration from the rear of the vehicle at low to moderate speeds could be a symptom of a problem with the All Wheel Drive (AWD) system, and any harsh shifting or 'slipping' from models equipped with the automatic transmission should also be noted.

Finally, be wary of any turbo-charged model that's been heavily modified, especially if the owner/seller has 'turned up' the boost for additional performance.

Engine

Naturally-aspirated or turbo-charged five-cylinder engines were available.

Displacing 2.4 litres, the engine created about 170 horsepower. The 2.5-litre turbo-charged variant bumped output as high as 227.

Verdict

No hugely troublesome issues seem apparent in this generation of S40, but have your potential used candidate checked by a Volvo mechanic ahead of your purchase to be safe.
